3. Sex Offender Assessments & Officer

Commission for Pardons and Parole

Department of Correction clinical staff provide required psychological reports, sex offender assessments, and mental health evaluations to the Parole Commission. Due to the number of inmates and the fact that clinical staff are spending over 50% of their time conducting these evaluations, the Parole Commission is requesting that inmate evaluation and assessment be performed by the commission itself. This would be accomplished by contracting with private providers for these services. In doing so, clinical staff would far better serve the department and the community by focusing their particular skill set in the safe and effective management of the mental health, substance abuse, and sex offender populations by providing direct services in the form of treatment and case planning. In addition, one parole hearing officer is also requested to coordinate the contracts for the psychological evaluations, mental health evaluations, and sex offender assessments. This individual would also be utilized in the Reception & Diagnostic Unit (RDU) that is utilized to set the treatment plan for all inmates upon commitment to the department. [$417,000 Ongoing & $3,600 One-time]

4. Commission Review Court

Commission for Pardons and Parole

Establishing a commission review court is a new concept created by the Parole Commission to intervene at an earlier stage in a parole violation process and to help alleviate parole violation commitments to prison. The process would work in this manner: a parole commissioner would schedule one day per month in certain districts; parole officers would prepare a report outlining violations or problems the individual parolee is having; the parolee may be arrested or directed where to appear for meeting with the commissioner and parole officer; and the commissioner would talk with the parolee about ways to get back on track in following rules, laws, avoiding drugs, alcohol, etc. The commission is requesting funding to establish pilot projects in Boise and Pocatello.
